ANNIE LAURIE SI
OFF FOR SOUTH
Letter Tells Parents That When They Return to Alabama They'll Find Her.

CLEVELAND, O., April 22.—That blue eyed Annie Laurie Fortgang is on her way alone to New Decatur, Ala., the belief of her mother, Mrs. Ellen Fortgang, of this city.

With just $2 tucked in a pocket of her midday blouse, the 12 year old girl left home late, after writing a note telling of her intentions.

Neighbors saw the girl, with the red strings of her blue silk hat, trimmed with pink and yellow roses, led demurely under her chin, go marching down the street southward.

Annie Laurie carried a little flat bag and wore a dark blue shirt, white stockings, a navy blue coat and high black shoes.

Mrs. Fortgang said she and her husband, who formerly lived in Birmingham, Ala., planned to move with Annie Laurie to New Decatur in June.

"You will find me in New Decatur in June," read one sentence in Annie's note.

Here in the note, in part, left by the girl:

"I have gone away. I have tried, oh, so hard, to be a kind and loving girl and to obey. Don't think running away pleases me in the least, because it don't. I would love to stay home and be loved. At school all the girls jog me about my hat and talk about me.

"I am going to try to get to Birmingham, Ala. If I can, and am going to school some place else, or get a position if I can. I will write you soon. Yours lovingly, ANNIE LAURIE.

"P. S.: Please don't worry about schooling. You will find me in New Decatur, Ala., in June, if I live and nothing happens."
